

More and more, stylists and their clients are turning to Pinterest for wedding day hair ideas. So guess what? Pinterest's top bridal hair pinner—Stephanie Brinkerhoff—has joined Team BTC with all of her know-how and beautiful bridal styles. She created an exclusive book showcasing dozens of her best looks, and it's destined to be one of the top selling professional books of all time—an indispensable resource for stylists and their brides. Here's one of Steph's favorite looks from the book—a romantic, braided chignon that's feminine, fashionable and inspired by the red carpet.

1. Before
2. Divide the hair into four sections—one on each side and two in back.
3. Braid both of the back sections and secure each braid with an elastic.
4. Loosen the braid by pulling a small piece on the bottom as you push the rest of the braid upward with your fingers.
5. You can also pull gently at the sides of the braid to further loosen the shape.
6. Tuck the end of one of the braids and roll it up until it reaches the nape.
7. Secure the rolled braid with bobby pins.
8. Repeat on the other side—rolling and pinning the second braid.
9. Release one of the side sections. Create a loose French braid that incorporates the fringe.
10. Direct this braid across the top of the previously secured braids. Tuck in the ends and secure with bobby pins.
11. Repeat the previous step on the remaining side section, draping and pinning it on the opposite side.
